In a view of representation about two directions in knowledge – horizontal and vertical – two groups of ways (strategy) of understanding of individuality – superficial and deep – are allocated and discussed. The former are concentrated on the structure and static parameters of individuality and limited to supervision and an explanation, and deep ways are turned on dynamics and metamorphosises, aspiring to get into the reasons of happening changes. Among deep ways the central place is taken by psychological, which based on the concept of «psychologism» (L.M. Batkin). It is offered to expand «psychologism» by the author's hypothesis about the dynamic approach to comprehension of individuality to have an opportunity to correlate it with key parameters of a modern research paradigm.

Keywords: individuality, «psychologism», an explanation and understanding, isomorphous environment.
