

To a problem of the interrelation between the main forms of memory in the “activity-memory-activity” model

G.K. Sereda

Ph.D. in Psychology, was Head of Psychology Department at the Kharkov state university

The author analyzes contradictions of the “activity-memory-activity” model. The solution of these contradictions can be found within the framework of the activity-oriented approach (the tradition of A.N. Leontiev and his associates) and L.S. Vygotsky’s cultural-historical tradition in the psychology of memory. The paper proposes to redefine the notion of “memory” and interprets “memory” as the unity of action and the product of this action.

Keywords: “activity-memory-activity” model, L.S. Vygotsky’s cultural-historical psychology of memory, involuntary remembering